The Traders Bank, situated on the north-east corner of Yonge and Colborne Streets, was erected in 1905, and is one of the tallest office buildings in Canada. It has a frontage of 90 feet on Yonge Street and 110 on Colborne. The lower floor is devoted to the business of the bank, while the upper eleven stories are used for general office purposes.

I little thought, when I put this in my pocket last summer, that you would like it. The old Bank still stands as one of the city's better buildings.
